It was difficult for me to make this album of rap genre by singer-songwriter Christian Jimenez Bando (Porta). Rap became a musical style in black and Latino neighborhoods in the 1970s, as an expression of sounds and melodies that groups aesthetic currents such as graffiti, breakdancing or scratch. It is this language in response and with an anti-systemic tendency is what has led this musical genre to be one of the most listened to in the world. One of the greatest representatives of this musical genre is singer-songwriter Christian Jimenez Bando, better known as Porta. Born 2 July 1988 in Barcelona, Spain; Porta began recording attempts to rap songs on ... See more... On May 24, 2011 Porta announced on Facebook that he had left universal Music's label His last production record, it was released on May 7, 2012, its title Reboot, where he refers that he only wants to go back to his own and the beginnings; Giving a Reboot in Your Life It's Not a Matter of Ages (2006) No Trick (2007) In The Mouth So Much (2008) Bipolar Disorder (2009) Reboot (2012) Collected Presentations (with Bazzel, Chus, Naiara and Clodotos) 4 Raptastics (with NayckCloud and Bazzel) My Black Rose (with Bazzel) Than Feeling (Chus, Bazzel and Dj Datz) When I'm Without You (with Bazzel) Climax (with NayckCloud) It's just a rap (with Ram) I'm still one (with Bazzel) They can't (with Naiara) Stream Flame (with Bazzel) Mad Temple (with Enigmah, Neidos, Reoh, Boitrico and Revil) Say he's dead (with Bezea and Gransan) Seconds (with Santaflo, Currice, Eneyser and Norikko) Times of Crisis (with Syrah) Gossip (with Eldani) Madness in Me (with Eneyser) Madness in My RMX (with Eneyser and Santaflo) What are you going to tell me (with Naiara) than music (with Genioh and CurriCe) In the crosshairs (With Isusko and Sbrv) Tale 1 and how 20 (with Malafam's detachment) falls at night (with Endecah, Genioh, Fab and Hash) Free Tanga (with Eude and Compay23) Self-Love (with Xenon and Gem) I keep fighting (with Shoke) I'm doing things wrong (with Mowlihawk and Patri) It's Not You (With Yesh) Super Home Vertigo/Language and Literature Prologue is a note that is included at the beginning of literary work. It can be written by the same author to explain some elements of the work that he considers fundamental, or to say that he mobilized it to write the work; or it can be written by a person with fame or acquaintance of the author to make an assessment or explanation of the work. Some examples of prologs: When I was offered the idea of an anthology of poems related to politics and freedom, I was very attracted to this idea. This project immersed me in the world of poetry of all eras and continents. This allowed me to re-ed who had already introduced me to my life and others that I was utterly imposed. The diversity I have found is not limited to cultural or historical issues, but includes a huge variety of literary resources, game words, structures, emotions, among many other elements that struck me. Therefore, along with each poetry, the version is preserved in the original language, as everyone knows how much is lost when it comes to translation. The order in which these works were organized follows a simple chronological scheme to make a passage through history through the beauty of art. I hope you enjoy reading as much as I enjoyed the compilation. I am very pleased to present this masterpiece, the author of which is not only a colleague, but also a friend for life. While I appreciate all the work done by this wonderful writer, I think it's important to admit my preference for this latest creation. That's why. Although his previous work is characterized by his realism and brilliant writing, this work is added to exquisite journalistic work, where dedication in exhaustive research that has been conducted is exposed. It is remarkable the simplicity, which explains very complex events that allow readers without much knowledge of the topic without much knowledge to understand without much difficulty the chosen topic. It's a job that the big ones and the boys can enjoy, even a good reason to create a connection. I hope that this book will become a classic in the libraries of many families and a good educational material in secondary and universities. This is due to the wealth both in the information that is given to us, and in the artistic plane offered by this artist. I appreciate the space to share with readers the feelings generated by this work and congratulate the writer on his excellent work. In just a few months, the first edition of my work was sold out. That's why I decided to do a second edition in a year, including issues that I find interesting and enrich the topic being addressed. I also feel the need to update some of the data and correct some of the mistakes I made. I would like to thank the publisher for lending me a second time to its collaboration and to all those people who helped me make the appropriate changes. Finally, I appreciate the recognition of my colleagues and readers who have come to continue the discussion proposed in the book. This book was first published in 1985. He collects twenty-two stories that are considered the best of this author. As you probably know, this is considered one of the great artists of literature. That's why we decided to make a final edition that lends explanations and appreciation to other famous writers. We are also committed to making a publication that available to all audiences who need it. Although it was originally intended primarily for young readers who are part of the wonderful worlds created by this artist for us, we are sure that many people who already know it will enjoy rereading it again. We even expect people who are not yet lucky enough to go out on these pages for various reasons. While our goals seem to be difficult to achieve, we believe that it will be possible to reach many people because of the importance of this book. The importance of this work is not only because of its richness, but also its longevity over time, making it a must-read for art lovers of writing.
